Rutgers Day 2010
April 24, 2010
RBS will be hosting an alumni gathering at the brand new state of the art - Livingston Student Center. All RBS Alumni are welcome! Please RSVP.

Bring your family and friends and enjoy a full day of discovery and lively activities at Rutgers Day 2010! Visit rutgersday.rutgers.edu for more information.

10-Year Anniversary Celebration of the Pharmaceutical MBA Program
April 26, 2010
Rutgers Business School’s Pharmaceutical MBA Program will be recognizing its ten year partnership with seven pharmaceutical sponsors: Bristol-Myers Squibb, Eisai, Johnson & Johnson, Merck, Novartis, Roche and Schering-Plough (now part of Merck). -Click for event Information -RSVP today!

Rutgers to use Apple iPad in new digital marketing program
With Apple’s help, innovative technology becomes integral to executive education course. Read more...

PSEG CEO Ralph Izzo next speaker of RBS "CEO Lecture Series"

"Climate Change: Implications for National Security and the Economy"

Dean Michael R. Cooper, PhD and the Rutgers Business School Board of Advisers cordially invite you to attend the CEO Lecture Series featuring Alumnus Ralph Izzo, Chairman of the Board, President & CEO, Public Service Enterprise Group Inc. (PSEG).

- Event Details
- Directions
- RSVP today. Space is limited.

Recent News
More news at business.rutgers.edu/news

Rutgers to put Apple iPad to the test in new digital marketing program

MBA students one-on-one with America’s top executives in Executive Leadership class

On-site visit to Newark-based PSEG gives MQF students firsthand experience of energy giant’s operations

Partnership between pharmaceutical industry and RBS ensures relevant curriculum produces top-talent graduates pharma companies need

RBS team takes 2nd in Johnson & Johnson national case competition

Mayor Booker and Obama Administration Official Deliver Remarks at Exports and Jobs Forum at Rutgers Business School Newark

Outstanding RBS students celebrated at 2010 Awards Night

Rutgers continues investment in the future with approval of new Business School building on the New Brunswick campus

Rutgers Institute for Ethical Leadership and partners to train next generation of nonprofit leaders

Langdana Faculty Insight: Banks holding lots of money, but where's inflation?

RBS Alumnus Debuts 'Far As The Curse Is Found' Poetry Book

Rutgers Business School achieves AACSB re-accreditation, the hallmark of excellence in business education
Submit news item

Rutgers Today: University News

RBS Communications and Marketing contact info

Top news stories:

1. RBS professors featured in The New York Times

2. MBA students helping companies take their business to the next level

3. Rutgers Business Plan Competition Winners: Where are they now?

4. Hard-hitting Rutgers EMBA program rises in rankings

5. Rutgers Business School achieves AACSB re-accreditation, the hallmark of excellence in business education

Highlights of Recent Media Coverage

More coverage at business.rutgers.edu/coverage10

Rutgers and Apple team up to offer iPad business courses

The Star-Ledger (Newark, NJ) - April 20, 2010

Forget cranking out software code and hoping to strike it rich with a hit iPad app. Rutgers University said yesterday it will offer business courses - rather than application development ones - that revolve around Apple's hot new tablet computer. The program will be the first of its kind in the country and is a collaboration between Rutgers officials and Apple's higher education team. The week-long pilot, a digital marketing course, will launch July 19 and will award certificates to students.

Futures markets go Hollywood

Canadian Business.com (Canada) - April 20, 2010

Professor Avri Ravid discusses futures markets in terms of films in Hollywood. "Futures are generally in standardized commodities," he says. "Films are anything but." Traditionally trade in fairly workaday commodities, like corn, cotton and pork bellies.

Lifelong Learning Opportunities at Rutgers University

News from Rutgers (New Brunswick, NJ) - April 19, 2010

In the last year alone, approximately 45,000 non-traditional students took advantage of Rutgers' continuing professional education and lifelong learning programs - including more than 2,300 online and off-campus courses and course sections available to non-traditional students across New Jersey and beyond. Rutgers Business School has various traditional and non-traditional opportunities for students of any level (certificate programs, undergraduate, graduate, executive education).

Rutgers Business School to add $85 million facility

Philadelphia Inquirer (Philadelphia, PA) - April 19, 2010

Business Week - April 19, 2010

To meet the growing demands of its undergraduate business program, Rutgers University plans to start building an $85 million facility on its Livingston Campus next spring. The building will include 156,000 square feet of classrooms, lecture halls, instructional labs, meeting spaces, student lounges, faculty offices, a business library, and a mock trading floor.

Rutgers Business School re-accredited with AACSB

F1GMAT.com - April 17, 2010

Rutgers Business School - Newark and New Brunswick has recently been re-accredited with AACSB, the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. AACSB International accreditation represents the highest standard of achievement for business schools, worldwide. Institutions that earn accreditation confirm their commitment to quality and continuous improvement through a rigorous and comprehensive peer review. AACSB International accreditation is the hallmark of excellence in management education.

Certificate Programs in Pharmaceutical Management

Non-ClinicalJobs.com - April 17, 2010

Rutgers Business School’s Blanche and Irwin Lerner Center for Pharmaceutical Management Program offers A Two Day Certificate Program in Pharmaceutical Management. This Program provides a framework for understanding the structure and competitive profile of the industry, and includes a review of key regulatory issues, applicable patent law, drug pricing and reimbursement including the design of prescription drug benefit plans, DTC advertising, mergers and acquisitions, public policy initiatives, and financial evaluation.

Rutgers sets schedule for new business school

The Star-Ledger (Newark, NJ) - April 16, 2010

The board of governors of Rutgers University approved construction of an $85 million business school in Piscataway as part of a long-term plan to redevelop the Livingston campus into a center for business and professional studies. Increased demand for business school degrees exceeds the current capacity of the Rutgers Business School on the New Brunswick campus. Rutgers Business School started a four-year undergraduate program on the New Brunswick campus in fall 2008 for the first time since it began offering degrees in 1986.

Rutgers Business School to construct $85M facility on Piscataway campus

The Star-Ledger (Newark, NJ) - April 16, 2010

The Rutgers Business School plans to expand with an $85 million project to construct a new facility on the Livingston Campus in Piscataway. The facility will accommodate the demand of business students, which has been growing since the school created a four-year undergraduate business program in 2008 on its New Brunswick campus.

Rutgers approves construction of $85M business school

NJBIZ (Newark, NJ) - April 16, 2010

Rutgers University's Livingston campus will be home to an expanded business school facility, after the university's board of governors approved the project on Thursday. Construction on the $85 million facility for the Rutgers Business School, in Piscataway, is slated to begin in spring 2011. The 155,800-square-foot building will include academic space, faculty offices, meetings and a trading floor.

Rutgers Continues Investment in the Future of the University with Approval of New Business School Building on the New Brunswick Campus

News from Rutgers (New Brunswick, NJ) - April 15, 2010

The Board of Governors of Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, today approved the construction of a new facility for the Rutgers Business School-Newark and New Brunswick (RBS) on the Livingston Campus in Piscataway. It will be the centerpiece of the long-term plan to redevelop the Livingston Campus into a center for business and professional studies.

Mayor Booker and Obama Administration Official Deliver Remarks at Exports and Jobs Forum at Rutgers Business School Newark

City of Newark Press (Newark, NJ) - April 14, 2010

The Daily Newarker (Newark, NJ) - April 15, 2010

NJand.com (Newark, NJ) - April 20, 2010

Mayor Cory A. Booker, U.S. Commercial Service Deputy Assistant Secretary Ro Khanna, Deputy Mayor of Economic and Housing Development Stefan Pryor, Brick City Development Corporation Chief Executive Officer Lyneir Richardson, and Small Business Development Center at Rutgers Business School Regional Director Dr. Tendai Ndoro, discussed the Obama Administration's National Export Initiative during an Exports and Jobs Forum, which was held at the Rutgers Business School.

Tech seeks to learn from integrity survey

The Daily Toreador (Lubbock, TX) - April 15, 2010

In conjunction with the Center for Academic Integrity, Texas Tech and other universities around the world are participating in the Academic Integrity Matters survey. Donald McCabe, a professor of management and global business at Rutgers University and the founding president of the Center for Academic Integrity, said he plays a large role in administering the survey and Tech is one of more than 150 schools that have participated in the survey.

Hail And Farewell To The Class Of 2010

News from Rutgers (New Brunswick, NJ) - April 15, 2010

Meet several graduates who represent the best and the brightest of the Rutgers University, Newark, Class of 2010. They will be receiving diplomas during ceremonies next month.

Folica, Inc. Appoints John Hetherington as Chief Financial Officer

PR Web (New York, NY) - April 15, 2010

Folica.com, a leading online beauty retailer, today announced the appointment of RBS Alumnus John Hetherington (MBA) as the company's Chief Financial Officer. Hetherington brings more than 25 years of senior finance and operations experience at Frederic Fekkai & Co., L’Oreal USA and Chanel, Inc. to his role as CFO of Folica.

Program offers training for Newark-area nonprofits

NJBIIZ (Newark, NJ) - April 12, 2010

Rutgers Business School, in Newark, has been chosen to participate in a national fellowship program to train the next generation of community health leaders. The Rutgers Institute for Ethical Leadership; the city's Victoria Foundation; Princeton's Robert Wood Johnson Foundation; and the Center for Creative Leadership, in Greensboro, N.C., are collaborating in the RWJF "Ladder to Leadership" program, which will give fellowships to early-to mid-level professionals in health and community-related nonprofit organizations. The aim is to boost their skills and position them to take over from the retiring generation of nonprofit leaders.

Don Klock: Procurement intelligence key to value creation

Procurement Blog - March 23, 2010

While it's pretty obvious how good intelligence can help CPOs address supplier risk management, how can it help procurement functions when attention returns to growth and value creation? Professor of Supply Chain Management and Marketing Sciences Don Klock discusses in an audio clip.

Throw Out Skybox Tax Subsidies

The New York Times (New York, NY) - April 5, 2010

RBS Professor Jay Soled and Duke Law professor Richard Schmalbeck write about getting rid of tax subsidies and explains price explosions on business entertainment in a new Op-Ed in the New York Times. "Ideally, Congress would get rid of business-entertainment deductions altogether - after all, they are little more than an excuse for corporate executives to consume luxury items at a discount, distorting markets and cheating the public out of substantial tax revenue."

10 Best New Jobs for Men in 2010

Esquire Magazine (New York, NY) - April 5, 2010

If men like Bernie Madoff are national villains, then forensic accountants might be considered heroes. Large corporations and the government have increasingly trained regular old accountants for these positions in the wake of Enron; now, graduate programs like the one at the Rutgers Business School are gaining traction. Your job is simple: make sure everything adds up (in a legal sense), and hope you uncover a huge scandal.

Back to school for business owners

NJBIIZ (New Brunswick, NJ) - April 5, 2010

Rutgers program teaches NJ's first-generation firms about financing and making connections. "We're targeting first-generation-owned businesses," said professor Jeffrey Robinson. "Studies indicate these first-generation companies are particularly susceptible to failure, because they don't have the business training and connections to start and grow their businesses."

Does Merck Agreement Pave a Road Toward Change?

The New York Times (New York, NY) - April 4, 2010
Shareholders of Merck sued in 2004, contending that current and former company officers and directors had breached their fiduciary duties in the marketing of the painkiller Vioxx, causing investors to lose billions. Michael A. Santoro, an associate professor of business ethics at Rutgers Business School, was paid by the plaintiffs to help draft the settlement terms. "I would argue that every company, not only in the pharmaceutical sector, but also in other industries," he said, "should look at the settlement as a road map for things they need to revise in their own corporate governance."

Building a solid foundation
NJBiz (Newark, NJ) - March 29, 2010
The agency embraced these missions after a community needs assessment five years ago; its head, Tom Toronto, has now turned to a Rutgers University outreach program "to determine the level of awareness of our services, find out how our services resonate with the needs of the community and see what else we need to do." This follow-up study is among the projects selected by Rutgers Business School's nonprofit consulting group, which has assembled 22 management consultants who specialize in nonprofits - and have agreed to work with Rutgers for less than their usual fees.

Study: DOJ Ups Publicity of Tax Fraud Before April 15
MainJustice.com (Washington, D.C.) - March 31, 2010
The Justice Department tends to tout its successful prosecutions of tax fraud cases right before April 15 each year, according to a new study set to be published in the Virginia Tax Review. For the study, Joshua D. Blank of New York University School of Law and Daniel Z. Levin of Rutgers Business School analyzed 782 news releases issued by the Department of Justice Tax Division from 2003 through 2009, in which the DOJ announced a civil or criminal tax enforcement action against a taxpayer.

Black bias in models' skin shades
The Philadelphia Tribune (Philadelphia, PA) - March 25, 2010
Stevie Watson, an assistant professor of marketing at Rutgers Business School, and his research partners set out to determine whether skin color bias plays a role in how African Americans view advertising. Their research findings are revealed in an article, titled "Skin Color Shades in Advertising to Ethnic Audiences: The Case of African Americans," which is forthcoming in the Journal of Marketing Communications.

Students Learn to Make a Difference and Make a Living
News from Rutgers (New Brunswick, NJ) - March 2010
Social entrepreneurship was already being taught in Newark and New Brunswick through the Center for Urban Entrepreneurship & Economic Development at Rutgers Business School. And the concept had been embraced by the Intersect Fund, a microfinance venture founded by two Rutgers students for the benefit of New Brunswick in 2007. Matsuda knew he wanted to design a course that would appeal to students in all disciplines, but realized he needed someone with business savvy to help.

Professional Pricing Society Appoints Christopher D. Provines to its Board of Advisors
Trading Markets.com - March 17, 2010
The Professional Pricing Society (PPS) is pleased to announce the addition of Christopher D. Provines to its Board of Advisors. Mr. Provines is the Vice President of Global Strategic Pricing, Reimbursement & Government Affairs for Siemens Healthcare Diagnostics. Chris has an MBA from Rutgers University and is also a certified six sigma black belt. He is a distinguished Adjunct Professor at Rutgers University Business School MBA program, has published numerous papers on pricing and is a frequent speaker on pricing, business improvement and innovation.

Yaz birth control health problems raise concerns
The New York Times (New York, NY) - March 13, 2010
Bayer Corporation, the makers of Yaz birth control and pharmaceutical giant is at the center of lawsuits, alleging that their most popular form of contraceptive is causing serious health issues to otherwise healthy young women. "The health questions and lawsuits may rattle consumer confidence, but the warnings from federal health authorities about advertising and quality control raise larger questions about Bayer's approach to complying with government rules," said Michael A. Santoro, an associate professor at Rutgers Business School, who studied ethics in the pharmaceutical industry."

Marketing Plan Assistance for Small Businesses

Small Business Solutions - March 2010

Each fall semester, RBS Professor Stevie Watson assigns a project to his Marketing for Decision Making classes that involves creating a free marketing plan for actual small- and medium-sized businesses in New Jersey. By doing so, Watson is able to help his students apply his lectures to real world practice, while simultaneously helping New Jersey's business community.

RBS Alumnus Named Interim Metro General Manager

DCist (Washington, DC) - March 2010

RBS Alumnus (MBA) and former New Jersey Transit chief Richard Sarles as the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority's new interim general manager. Sarles, has an impressive résumé, having recently retired as Executive Director of New Jersey Transit, with more than 25 years total experience in the industry.

Upcoming RBS Events

More events at business.rutgers.edu/events

Rutgers-Newark SBDC

April 22, 2010

Giving Voice to Values by Mary Gentile, PhD

April 21, 2010

Pitch Seminar

April 23, 2010

ALUMNI CELEBRATION: RBS New Brunswick

April 24, 2010

Rutgers Day 2010

April 24, 2010

Ten Year Anniversary Celebration of the Pharmaceutical MBA Program

April 26, 2010

Finding a Workplace You'll Love

April 28, 2010

CEO Lecture Series, featuring Ralph Izzo

April 28, 2010

2010 Program in Pharmaceutical Management

April 29, 2010 to April 30, 2010

MBA Networking and Happy Hour

April 30, 2010

Triple Crown Conference

April 30, 2010

Graduate Admissions Information Session

May 3, 2010

Achieving Sales and Service Excellence in Your Business

May 11, 2010
RBS Graduate Admissions Online Chat
May 12, 2010

RBS Commencement 2010 in New Brunswick
May 16, 2010

RBS Commencement 2010 in Newark
May 17, 2010

back to top^