Publications in Progress

1. Pareto Apologetics: The Beginning of a Professional Ethics, Journal of Forensic Economics, Christopher Young. This article has been sent back to me for substantial revisions. This was submitted to the Journal of Forensic Economics
2. Revisiting Private Company Risk: A New Argument and Approach, Journal of Forensic Economics, Christopher Young. This article is being considered for publication and is co-authored with James DiGabrielle, and Luigi D'Onorio DeMeo. As part of this project, I am responsible for developing the hypothesis, compiling the data, developing the testing parameters and discussing the results. Luigi D'Onorio DeMeo is responsible for the literature review, and James DiGabrielle is responsible for writing about the importance of the research, additional research that must be conducted and the future research agenda stemming from this work
3. Lottery Gaming and Substitutes (or Are They Complements?). This is a paper being co-published with Dr. Kurt Rotthoff and Dr. Stanley Smith. This is based on findings in a contract dispute. The underlying work is complete and the paper will be submitted in Q1, 2022
4. Re-evaluating Ethics and Justice from the Panopticon of Neuroscience and Free Will. This article is being considered by the journal - Teaching Ethics. This paper identifies the challenges to normative ethics in light of recent discoveries and develops a modified normative ethics framework considering limitations to free will, specifically a person's genetics and the environment in which they live. This paper explains how a new approach to free will and normative ethics has the potential to create a more just and fair ethics system
